Egypt Admits Enemy Gains

By Chalmers M. Roberts

Israel last night appeared headed toward a major military victory over her Arab enemies. By Israeli account and Arab admission, Israeli forces yesterday smashed deeply into Egypt and fought their way to the gates of the Jordan-held old city of Jerusalem.

Washington sources said the Jordanian armed forces appeared to have been defeated and that Syrian forces appeared headed for similar defeat. They were more cautious about how long Egypt could resist, and an unconfirmed report said Jordan was seeking a cease-fire with Israeli forces.

There were violent Arab counter-reactions: breaks in diplomatic relations, interruptions to oil supplies, closing of the Suez Canal, though it was not blocked, and accusations that the United States and Britain had sent aircraft into combat on the Israeli side.

This latter charge was angrily and categorically denied in Washington and London.

At the United Nations, the Security Council met at elan late and unanimously voted a general cease-fire call with no qualifications. President Johnson welcomed the resolution as the necessary first step toward "a new time of settled peace" in the Middle East.

Israel's Foreign Minister Abba Eban told the Council after the vote that his government welcomed the ceasefire, but that the implementation depends upon "timely acceptance" by the other governments. It is imperative, he

Israel Drives Toward Suez, Drops Paratroops in Sinai

By Alfred Friendly

Washington Post

Israel's forces today took the bold and dangerous step of crossing the Suez Canal to drive against Egypt, as it was announced yesterday, and dropped paratroopers in Sinai. This was the first act of a major military operation that has been going on for several days.

The announcement of the crossing of the Suez Canal was made by the Egyptian government, which also reported that paratroopers were dropped in Sinai. The operation was scheduled for today, and it was expected to be a major military operation that would have far-reaching consequences.

The Israeli forces crossed the Suez Canal and moved into Sinai, where they encountered heavy resistance. The fighting was intense, and there were reports of heavy casualties on both sides. The operation was expected to be a major military operation that would have far-reaching consequences.

Pressure Mounts For U.S. to Assert Pro-Israel Stand

By David S. Broder

Republican leaders who combined yesterday to press the Johnson Administration to take action on Israel's behalf, had various indications that a partition policy might be discussed by the United States. President Johnson yesterday urged his nation to see that the United States see that it emerges from the war with a guarantee of its future security.

There were some indications that a partition policy might be discussed by the Administration, but its critics were calling for an end to the U.S. intervention in the war. Both the Administration and its critics were demanding an end to the U.S. military involvement and the peace talks.

In a speech prepared for the United Jewish Appeal dinner in New York, George A. Rockefeller (R) said that the Jewish people must "support every action whatever its consequences of conditions of conflict in the Middle East.

The Jewish Statistical Bulletin reported that there were 3,000,000 Jews in the United States in 1966, the highest increase in American Jewish population ever recorded. The Jewish population in the United States may be increasing at a rate of 5% per year, according to the report.

In the current Middle East, the United Nations has sent a forces of the United Nations to the area to prevent any further fighting. There are at least a dozen comparable reports from the United Nations, which have been published.

The Arab Group has LBJ its views on the UN, which is the United States' representative to the UN, on a request for $1 billion in military aid to Israel.

The Defense Department says that the US military aid to Israel is less than the total amount of aid to other nations. The US has sent at least $2 billion in aid to Israel since 1967, according to the report.

The group, in a telegram, said that the US was committed to the United Nations, which is the leading body of the world. They have maintained that any action, including the use of force, is a violation of the UN charter.

The group also said that the US has the right to take action in self-defense, if necessary, to protect its interests and the interests of its allies.

Notes Are Exchanged

Washington officials as an attempt to shift blame for battlefield setbacks, have sought an uncharacteristically indisputable denial from the United States, according to a Foreign Ministry statement of maintaining a widening war. A State Department official, Colonel Senator Moiz (Kamel), at 2:45 a.m. to protest "inflammatory and false broadcasts" alleging U.S. involvement.

Following an early morning White House conference, Secretary of State Dean Rusk at 9:45 a.m. delivered the most sharply worded statement that has been made in his six years as Secretary of State.

But it is evident that U.S. carriers-based planes took part in "attacks on Egypt" as "utterly and wholly false," and containing "just no shred of truth."

"Malicious Charge"

"We can only conclude," said Rusk, "that this was a malicious charge, known to be false, and therefore, obviously, invented for some purpose, not fully disclosed."

The truth of the matter, said Rusk, could have been swiftly ascertained in either Cairo or Washington by only a telephone call.

At the Pentagon, Prid. G. Goodling, Acting Secretary of Defense for Public Affairs, said:

"No U.S. military aircraft have been involved in any way in the Middle East actions. Reports of U.S. military action in this area are false. The 6th Fleet carriers and their aircraft have been hundreds of miles from the scene of the fighting."

According to one report, the Jordanian radar operator was said to have detected "targets" on an enemy screen which showed air activity in the Mediterranean, and jumped to the erroneous conclusion that he was reporting flights from a U.S. aircraft carrier.

A few hours later, a 2:45 p.m. officially denied notice of its break of diplomatic relations with the United States, Ambassador Kamel was summoned to the office of Lucie D. Basile, Assistant Secretary of State for Near East and South Asian Affairs, to make the diplomatic call. "It has no intention of reciprocating," Ambassador Kamel, a diplomat of several years' standing here since 1957 and

Tunisia to Send Troops Today

WASHINGTON—Tunisia will send troops to the Middle East on Wednesday in support of the conflict between Arab and Israeli forces.

The decision follows a phone conversation between President Sadat of Egypt and President Ben Ali of Tunisia, in which they agreed to provide military aid to the Arab states. The troops will be equipped with modern weapons and will be sent to join the battle against Israel, according to Tunisian officials.

The move comes as tensions between Arab and Israeli forces have escalated in recent days, with both sides accusing each other of aggression.

In a statement, Tunisian Foreign Minister said, "The security and sovereignty of Tunisia are at stake. We cannot remain indifferent to the fate of our Arab brothers."
they had insisted on a provision calling for withdrawal of Arab forces as of 3 a.m. on July 4 before the Arab-Israeli fighting began.

Although Soviet Ambasdator Vitalii Fedorenko demanded after the vote that the Council adopt another resolution calling for cease-fire, the UN forces had already been preparing for a cease-fire. The practical meanging of the compromise is that Moscow has looked at the miltary situation and decided to accept the Arab withdrawal.

It also appeared that the Soviet Union does not accredit Jordanian and Egyptian charges that American and British planes and pilots had been providing air cover for the Israelis. Soviet warplanes in the Mediterranean have been shadowing the U.S. 6th Fleet and could verify any airborne flights.

Tonight American Ambasador Arthur J. Goldberg said government illegally rejected these "fantastic allegations," Lord Comden, the British ambassador, called them "a monstrous and mischievous invention."

The United States, Goldberg said, in prepared to cooperate with the United Nations in an immediate investigation of the Arab solidarity.

Jordan Is Said

Jordan has put out dis-for an immediate cease-fire with Israel, diplomatic sources reported last night.

There was no immediate confirmation available at the State Depart-would not delay the re-

was given to a spokesman for the Jordanian Embassy in

The request to mediate
a cease-fire, the sources said, was conveyed Washington yesterday before the U.N. Security Council unanimously accepted an appeal to all sides to stop fighting.

Washington sources declined to discuss any de-

U.S., Industry to Discuss Oil Shortage Possibility

By Eric Westerhout

By Thursday, the Administration officials planned talks with oil industry executives about the possibility of oil shortages. Longer-range economic effects, of course, could prove more severe.

The planned meeting Thursday of the oil industry leaders to discuss the possibility of oil shortages would take place as Europe cut off oil supplies to Saudi Arabia due to continuing tensions between the two nations. The meeting was expected to focus on ways to reduce the impact of any cutbacks on the U.S. economy.

Oil exports to Europe have been reduced in recent months, as the European Union is imposing economic sanctions on Iran due to its nuclear program. The sanctions have led to a decrease in oil exports from Iran, which is a major supplier to Europe.

The meeting was expected to consider ways to reduce the impact of any cutbacks on the U.S. economy, such as increasing domestic oil production and encouraging conservation.

U.S. oil supplies are expected to remain stable, but the meeting was seen as an opportunity to discuss potential strategies for应对 future shortages. The meeting was expected to involve representatives from various oil companies, as well as government officials.

Royal Trip to India

BANGKOK, June 6 (UPI) - The King of Thailand and Queen Sirikit are expected to arrive in India for a historic visit on June 23, where they will meet with Indian Prime Minister Manmohan Singh.

The visit is seen as a symbol of strengthening ties between the two nations, as well as a chance to discuss economic and political issues. The King and Queen are expected to travel to several cities in India, including New Delhi and Mumbai.

The visit is also seen as an opportunity for the King and Queen to promote Thailand's tourism industry, which has been growing in recent years.

The trip is expected to last for about a week, during which time the King and Queen will meet with Indian leaders and participate in cultural events. They are also expected to visit several historical sites and monuments in India.
Battle Looms For Walled City

Historic Shrines for 3 Religions Threatened in Jerusalem

By Flora Lewis

Jerusalem, June 6—Though the Israelis have already inflicted what the mayor of Jerusalem called a "terrible defeat for the Arabs," the most formidable battle for the Holy City is yet to come.

Catastrophe is getting mere intense. There may be house-to-house fighting through the narrow streets of the walled old city which at one time housed every third building in a shrine. The Israeli control of most of the area around it, marks the frontiers are holding up the day, they say.

They have also battled determinedly to keep some of the Jewish combatants around the city—almost certainly a hopeless struggle if they are cut off and have no air support. But it is a fight which has the admiration of many Israelis.

"They are fighting for the good name of the Arabs," said Mayor Teddy Kollek. "But this is our battle, too. We shall not give in."

The problem is one of communication. Some 30,000 people live inside the walls of the old city, and some 60,000 are outside it.

Egyptian sources said this picture shows Israeli troops lining up prisoners in the Gaza Strip for identification.

Cairo Orders All Americans to Leave

London vigorously denied Egyptian charges, other Arab leaders broke off relations with the United States and the United Arab Republic, either Britain or both.

British Foreign Secretary, Mr. Anthony Eden, said that hand-to-hand house-to-house fighting was going on in the city. The communiques said that Jordanian forces advanced into the Jewish sector of Jerusalem, in the Arab quarter.

Hundred Voluntary Serve in Israel

By Carl Bernstein

Volunteer service in Israel is a popular form of "social service." Among American students, it is often associated with a sense of adventure and a desire to make a difference. Many of the volunteers have a strong commitment to the Jewish people and to the state of Israel.

The volunteers are asked to perform various tasks, such as construction work, teaching, and providing medical care. They are also expected to learn the Hebrew language and to become familiar with the culture of the country.

The volunteers are often housed in communal living arrangements and are expected to participate in group activities. They are also required to take part in a weekly meeting to discuss their progress and to receive feedback from their supervisors.

The volunteer experience is seen as a valuable opportunity for personal growth and development. It is also seen as a way to contribute to the development of the country and to make a positive impact on the community.

Many of the volunteers return to the United States after completing their service, and some of them choose to continue their involvement in the country by working for non-profit organizations or by volunteering in other countries.

The volunteer experience is often seen as a rewarding and fulfilling one, and it is considered to be an important aspect of the American Zionist movement.

The volunteers are also able to develop a strong connection with the Jews of Israel and to learn about their culture and way of life.

The volunteers are often able to form close friendships with the Israelis, and they are able to share their experiences and insights with others.

Many of the volunteers return to Israel after completing their service, and they are often able to find work in the country or to continue their involvement in the community.

The attack was the culmination of a series of events that had led to the assassination of Rabin, and marked a turning point in Israeli politics. The bombing was carried out by the Jewish Defense League, a right-wing extremist group.

Leading Americans Speak Out Against Arab Threat To Destroy Israel

American scholars, intellectuals, artists, poets and writers made this appeal to the President before war broke out. It is even more urgent now. The Egyptian blockade of the Gulf of Aqaba has already led to war, but the statement is being published here in the public interest since it reflects the attitudes of the intellectual community regarding the need for the U.S. to maintain its commitments “to safeguard the integrity, security and survival of Israel and its people, and to uphold our own honor.”
The crisis in the Middle East is for the United States and the rest of the world a crisis of law and conscience. For Israel and its people it is a crisis of life or death.

The issue can be stated with stark simplicity: Whether to let Israel perish, or to act to assure its survival and to secure legality, morality and peace in the area.

The immediate issue is freedom of passage through the Strait of Tiran and the Gulf of Aqaba, a right which is indispensable to Israel’s existence. These are international waterways and a blockade of Israel shipping there is illegal. Immediate action is required to affirm the principle and to prevent its violation.

But the crux of the matter is the massive, concerted Arab threat to destroy Israel, using Aqaba as the lever of coercion. In this crisis, we have come to a moment of truth for our own country and for the whole world.

Aqaba is a test from which all nations who are watching our performance will take their cue. If we fail to act to maintain the principle of freedom of navigation, every one of these countries will take note.

We therefore urgently call upon the President of the United States, supported as we have no doubt he will be by the people and the Congress, to act now with courage and conviction, with nerve and firmness of intent, to maintain free passage in those waters—and so to safeguard the integrity, security and survival of Israel and its people, and to uphold our own honor.
Wilson Denies Helping Israelis

The Prime Minister also told a packed House of Commons that Britain was not sending arms shipments for 38 hours to both Israel and the Arab states pending talks between the United States and other nations supplying arms to the Middle East.

Wilson said he was not sending into the combat area "before terrible damage has been done to places which are sacred for three of the great religious religions." But during his absolute statement, the Prime Minister warned briefly on the problem that is most worrying his government — the possibility of a Soviet Union in the Middle East.

Russians Resist Arab Bid to Drag Them Into Fighting

By Victor Zaza

PARIS—The Shah of Iran leaves Elyas Palace, Paris, after a visit with President de Gaulle and his wife, at center. Emperor Farsh of Iran is at left.

Associated Press

The invasion of the Middle East is unlikely, and even if it were to occur, it would not be a significant event. The reasons for this are as follows:

1. Security of Mankind: The invasion could lead to the destruction of millions of people, and it is not in the interest of any country to engage in such a conflict.

2. Abolition of Colonialism: The invasion would only further strengthen the resolve of the colonized nations to fight for their freedom.

3. Imperialism and Concentration of Power: The invasion could lead to increased concentration of power in the hands of a few, which would be detrimental to the global community.

4. Purification of People's Liberation Movements: The invasion would only serve to purify the efforts of the people's liberation movements across the world.

5. Second Front: The invasion would be a second front in the war against Western imperialism.

It is important to note that the Middle East is a complex region, and any invasion would only lead to further instability and violence. It is therefore crucial that all parties involved work towards a peaceful resolution of the conflict.

Israel Bases Strategy On Dash to Suez Canal

An image of a page from the newspaper.

Israeli-style offensives against Egyptian installations in the Sinai have been ongoing for several days. The Israeli military has been using precision-guided missiles and artillery to target key Egyptian infrastructure. The attacks have inflicted significant damage on Egyptian military and civilian facilities, leading to increased tensions in the region.

On the ground, Israeli ground forces have been advancing towards the Egyptian border, with reports of troops encountering sporadic resistance from Egyptian soldiers. The Israeli air force has been providing close air support to地面 forces.

However, the situation remains unpredictable, with both sides continuing to assess their options for further military action. Diplomatic efforts are ongoing to de-escalate the situation, but tensions remain high in the region.

Cairo Radio

Cairo Radio's statement that the United States has taken part in military operations against Egypt is, of course, wholly false. It is at once a transparent and absurd assertion. The United States has never participated in such operations, and it is highly unlikely that it will ever do so. The claim is an attempt to mislead and intimidate the Egyptian people.

Preventing Blackouts

The lesson to be learned from the second major electrical power failure in less than two years—this one involved 13 states—is that the utilities must be required by Federal law to strengthen their interstate grids with more efficient transmission capacity. Large capital outlays will be required, but since inflation can only result in the recurrence of future blackouts, the real costs will not be high.

On Tax Exempt Bonds

The bipartisan sponsorship of legislation that would lift the Federal tax exempt from the "industrial development" bond, issued by state and local governments to finance private enterprise, raises a broader and more controversial issue. The tax exempt status of such bonds has been a source of support for local economic development. However, the use of tax exempt bonds for private purposes has raised concerns about the equity and fairness of tax policy.

Injustice to Farmers

Farmers are paying increasing prices for herbicide seed, fertilizer, weed spray and insecticides. This average farmer and his sons work a fifteen hour day from April through October. His entire career is based on a gamble with that unpredictable companion, the weather. If anyone is truly interested in the welfare of the farmer, let them not allow the farming industry to suffer any more than it has to. The time is ripe to halt the unfairness of the USDA, to stop the drain of money and resources that is taking place.

A25
Rule of Reason ... FCC Should Extend It to Politics

The usually cautious FCC, acting on an appeal by the telephone industry, has recently approved a proposal to permit the use of voice mail services.

This is a major development in the ongoing battle between the telephone companies and the burgeoning number of independent service providers. The FCC's decision to approve the proposal is a significant victory for the industry, which has been seeking to expand its services for some time.

The decision is expected to have a major impact on the way businesses communicate with each other. Many small businesses have been able to successfully operate without the need for a dedicated telephone line, but the absence of a dedicated line has limited their ability to offer certain services. The FCC's decision to approve the proposal will allow these businesses to offer a wider range of services to their customers.

In addition, the decision could have a significant impact on the way consumers communicate with each other. Many consumers have been using voicemail services to communicate with each other for some time, but the absence of a dedicated line has limited their ability to offer certain services. The FCC's decision to approve the proposal will allow these consumers to offer a wider range of services to their customers.

Mideast Buys
Most Arms
Outside Area

London, June 9—Of all the belligerents in the Middle East crisis only two— Iran and Egypt—can make some of their own arms.

The most sophisticated weapons produced in the Middle East are Egyptian rockets with ranges of up to 40 miles, but which are thought to lack a dependable guidance system.

Neither the Egyptians nor the Iranians are able to produce tanks or high-performance aircraft. Like all other Middle Eastern countries, they buy these abroad.

There is, however, an efficient Israeli aircraft factory at Lydda, building French-designed Mangister jets which can carry 15 ground-attack rockets, napalm or two 1,000-pound bombs.

An Egyptian aircraft factory at Helwan, south of Cairo, is capable of producing MA-500 superlete fighters, designed in Spain by Messerschmidt, but they are almost certainly inferior to Egypt's Russian Mig. Egypt claims to have five aircraft and rocket factories and 13 other military factories of unspecified type.

All the belligerents have bought their frontline equipment from Britain, France, the Soviet Union or the United States. Iran buys exclusively from the United States, Syria buys exclusively from the Soviet Union, Kuwait buys exclusively from Britain. All the others spread their purchases, though nearly all modern Egyptian arms come from Russia.

About Defector

Bonn, June 8—The Soviet Union protested to West Germany because it handed a Russian pilot to the Americans after the crashlandsed MiG-21 in Bavaria, the foreign office said today. A spokesman said the pilot was released at his own request.
